

Munjoy Hill, East End, Portland, Maine

Portland’s most vibrant and eclectic neighborhood.

Explore Munjoy Hill, Portland’s most vibrant and eclectic neighborhood, and you will discover panoramic ocean views, treasures from Portland’s rich history, architectural character, locally-owned shops, restaurants, artists’ studios, and great residents—some of some from families that have lived here for generations. Here are three highlights not to miss:

- The 86-foot-tall Portland Observatory, which was built in 1807 to allow ships to communicate with the harbor using colorful flags, is the only historic maritime signal tower left in the country
- Eastern Promenade and Fort Allen Park, where you can paddle, swim, take the kids to the playground, hit a tennis ball, have a picnic, or read a book. Be prepared to be distracted—the views are mesmerizing.
- St. Lawrence Arts, where you can attend plays presented by theater in residence, Good Theater—as well as a dozen other theater companies—and listen to musicians from around the world and around the corner.

Experience the neighborhood; wander the residential streets, chat with the local business owners and have a meal. You’ll see why Munjoy Hill represents “Portland living at its peak.” Look for the original trolley tracks in front of 118 Congress Street and you will know you have arrived at the top.
